Column 1 includes Class 4, Sub-Class 1 and 2 of Class 5, and Classes 6, 9, 10, and 15, as given in the 1st column of Table IV; Column 2 includes Class 7; Column 3, Class 8; Column 4, Class 11; Column 5, Sub-Class 3 of Class 5; Column 6, Classes 2 and 3; Column 7, Classes 1 and 17; Column 8, Class 12; Column 9, Class 13; Column 10, Classes 14 and 16.

CLASSIFICATION.—In all classifications of industrial pursuits, the grouping must be to a certain extent arbitrary, and cannot always be perfectly consistent; inasmuch as some occupations embrace more than one class, particularly where the population is sparse. The order adopted in the Censuses of the United Kingdom has been followed in these Tables as closely as the difference between the circumstances of the two countries admitted.

The Table may be read thus:—The total number of Males under 15 years was 30,996, of whom 30,204 had no occupation or were receiving education, leaving 792 in regular employment. Deducting those 792 boys from 120,697, the total of Males of all pursuits, we find that 119,905 was the number of 15 years of age and upwards who were engaged in actual occupation. Of the 2590, whose pursuits were not specified or who were unemployed, a considerable portion were lads over 15 years of age, some of whom were attending school or receiving tuition.
